Set against the backdrop of one of Key West's most prestigious streets, this extraordinary estate is a masterpiece of luxury and refinement, offering an unmatched blend of Palm Beach elegance and Key West historical charm. Moments away from waterfront dining, beaches and tennis and pickleball courts, 1101 Casa Marina Court is a home like no other. With a deeply rooted rich history, this rare property spans half a city block, commanding attention with its vast landscaped grounds, sweeping open spaces, and a stunning pool surrounded by an elaborate courtyard with a meditation garden--ideal for grand entertaining or peaceful relaxation. This estate built was by A. Maitland Adams in the early 1930's, who was said to be a partner of Charles Thompson, Ernest Hemingway's fishing companion. If the walls could talk at this iconic residence, it would tell you that this is the very home where renowned author Philip Caputo penned "Indian Country" and where Gregory Peck and Harry Truman played cards in the dining room. The home features five bedrooms and four and a half bathrooms, including a second-story guest apartment that offers privacy and versatility. Recent updates to the home include travertine marble floors, new roof (2025), high-impact windows and doors, a chef's kitchen, and a welcoming fireplace. Located in the coveted and exclusive Casa Marina
